OPERA HOUSE AND CONVENTION HALL

THROUGH FORESIGHT AND PUBLIC SPIRT OF MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL ADA MAY SECURE A GREAT NECESSITY.

The Plan Is to Construct Over the City Hall a Modern and Comodious Auditorium for Opera House and Convention Purposes.

The lately apparent awakening of the citizens of the city to the great need of an opera house and convention hall for Ada has at last affected a plan whereby there is being conducted today a co-operative action among several citizens promptuary to an arrangement whereby a third story may be constructed over the city hall, which shall be utilized as a convention hall and opera house.

The mayor and individuals of the city council have certified that they would enter into a contract with any responsible company of local citizens, who would construct the third story over the city hall in approved manner and harmonious with the architecture of the present proposed structure to afford in return the privilege of a ninety-nine year lease tenure for a nominal rental in return. Since such regard for the public good is evinced by the city council, it is considered by many that there should at this time be exercised by the citizens the most liberal public spirit that there might be secured what is really a public necessity, and a necessity which could have no chance of being supplied except this one opportunity is grasped, that of constructing an opera house and general auditorium over the city hall.

Such a convention hall with balcony as is proposed will afford a seating capacity of seventeen hundred people. The cost of the third story finished complete will be $3,750 more or less.

The present architectural design of the city hall may not only be carried out in all symmetry with the additional story, but more, the added height will afford in many respects a more attractive structure and the result will be added credit and more prestige to the city.

Ada, shortly, of course, will be a city of 10,000 people, when there will be required for city purposes a larger home than the present contract proposes. Under a proper contract, the city could then take over the third story property, thereby being relieved of the necessity of rebuilding hall or erecting a new one, such as Oklahoma City, Muskogee, Shawnee and other Oklahoma cities have been required to do.

Ada has no opera house or convention hall. There probably is not another city of such size in the southwest with out some sort of public hall accommodation. A suggestion of the added responsibility of the city to supply such a public necessity is included in the fact that President Briles of the East Central State Normal has offered to pay any management of respectable opera house in Ada $100.00 for the accommodation of a lyceum course of five numbers during next term, which he desires to bring here in the interest of his school and for the general public edification.

It will be a year before the state normal college with its auditorium will have been completed. The seating capacity of the auditorium of the High school is not more than two hundred. Duty to the state normal along with the general public needs emphasizes the present necessity that the citizens of Ada take advantage of the city's offer by subscribing to the opera house and convention hall construction fund.

Architect M'Kemmey is busy drawing the plans and specifications for the proposed addition. These plans, with the estimate of the cost, along with proposed contract for management at a given price during the first year will be presented to interested citizens Monday.

This bids fair to be one instance where citizens may participate in a proposition, which is both public spirited and profitable.

INDIANS WANT LANDS SOLD.

Monster Meeting Will Be Held at Coalgate in September.

Guthrie, Okla., Aug. 5.—A united effort by citizens of the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations, whites and Indians, to get congress to allow the sale of the 5,000,000 acres of segregated coal lands in the Choctaw-Chickasaw country, will be made at Coalgate September 6 and 7, according to Representative G. E. Jahn, who was in Guthrie asking the presence of Governor Haskell at the conference.

The executive committee of the segregated coal land commission meets at Coalgate on that date, and with them will meet several thousand interested citizens who wish so much undeveolped land sold so that their section of the state may grow as is the rest of Oklahoma. Because of the fact that it has always been represented to congress that the Indians oppose the sale of the segregated coal lands, Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians will make up the bulk of the conference; and it is hoped that resolutions asking the sale of the lands and signed by several thousand Indians at one meeting will have some weight with congress.

Mr. and Mrs. Torbett Return.

Major and Mrs. Sam Torbett have returned from Los Angeles, San Francisco and other great western points where they sojourned during the continuance of the blood and fever heat period in the section of their home. The Torbetts speak happily of the pleasures and comforts attending their western stay. While the theromometer registered 100 to 105 at home, they were basking in the sunlight where the rays, slanting into the Pacific, did not advance the atmosphere above the point of sixty degree. This affiable Ada family on their return remained several days at both Salt Lake City and Colorado Springs. When the reporter met Major Sam's 250 pounds avoirdupois on the street this morning, he angled over shadeward and remarked as he swiped a rivulet of perspiration from his smiling countenance, "Yes, it was fine, comfortable with coat and by fire in the evening, but I've been melting ever since I reached Kansas City homeward bound. My, but its warm."

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION LABEL ADA, OKLA.

In allowing the alley south of 17th street and east of Rennie Avenue to be fenced up and utilized as a garden spot the street and alley committee of the city council have established a precedent peculiar to most cities of the first class in this country.

The job department of the News has just completed and shipped to the Corporation Commission at Guthrie 5,000 copies of a 38 page book, being the Opinion and Order No. 203, of the Corporation Commission, promulgating rules and rates governing the handling of express in Oklahoma. Acknowledgements of satisfaction on the part of the state officials have already been received, and the fact that the News is equipped for the execution of jobs of such magnitude is a recommendation of which we are proud. The News has the second largest pay roll of any industrial institution in the city, and at this puncture bids fair to maintain its place as such.

As the time approaches for the opening of the East Central Normal school at this place the urgent need of more rent houses and boarding house facilities can be readily observed. People can be seen day after day in search of a place to live, and it is not a perversion of truth to say that numbers of families have moved on who would have located here could they have secured houses to live in. With the opening of the Normal school will come many new families, and today there is not a vacant rent house in the town. Everything considered it is doubtful if a better investment can be made than that of building houses for rent, yet the crying need for the same grows apace.

A REMARKABLE RECORD.

It can easly be understood how the great machinery of a state might be kept moving with ease and precision when once its public buildings are all erected and equipped and the officers in charge have had sufficient experience to guide them. But take for example the Oklahoma State penitentiary under the care and control of Warden R. W. Dick. On last Saturday his records show nine hundred and ninety-nine convicts under his control; one hundred and seventeen being detained at the Vinita jail, fourteen being temporarily absent as witnesses, and eight hundred and sixty-eight being cared for at the temporary penitentiary at South McAlester. Many of these inmates are of desperate and unruly character, and yet during the entire year there has only been eleven escapes which is a lower per cent than the average of other fixed permanent state penitentiaries. Warden Dick has no means whatever of detaining the vast majority of these prisoners by the aid of stone walls or steel cages, his most formidable protection against escape being a high barbed wire fence charged with electricity. The men are in a healthful condition, good state of discipline and the able-bodied ones rendering labor to the state daily in the erection of the walls of the permanent penitentiary. This successful management by Warden Dick is becoming the subject of universal favorable comment among prison officers of experience in other states. A recent visit to this institution shows that it is the Warden'h unusual ability and contsant and careful attention to duty which has enabled him even up to this date to produce such good results. It is easy for one determined on criticism to tell how much better he could perform public service. The only wonder is that the kicker's intelligence and capacity has gone so long unnoticed and unemployed for the public good.—New State Tribune.

GREEDY GAME CLOSES.

The enactment of the tariff bill is an event which, in our opinion, marks the triumph of wrong over right, a victory which, by giving to a few a license to exploit the many, debauches the principle that gave the breath of life to our government. Yet we can squeeze one drop of comfort out of the miserable consummation. Its enactment rings down the curtain on a spectacle which has disgraced the Nation in the eyes of all decent- minded people.

That in the closing hours Mr. Aldrich should have been caught trying to filch an additional 5 per cent bounty for the shoe manufacturers, and that his treachery in the matter of cotton bagging should have been disclosed, make, we think, a climax that is altogether logical and fitting. From the first it has been a greedy scramble upon a stage set for feats of patriotic statesmanship, and the incongruity between the play and the scenery has had the optical effect of dwarfing most of our statesmen to the stature of pygmatic politicians. Comparatively only a few have saved their reputations whole: and comparatively only a few were of such low repute that they haven't shrunk to even a greater pettiness. That those who are immediately affected by the tariff should have striven by fair and foul means to profit by its favors is of itself not an edifying thing, though the plea of human selfishness has some extenuating force. But that men chosen for the high station of senatorship on the theory that they are somewhat impervious to the influence of such considerations should have excelled in ignoble arts even those who exposed their greed naked and unashamed, is a fact which must mortify in some degree the man of most hardened sensibilities and somewhat comfort those who have never admitted the feasibility of a democracy. In all the ignoble arts of barter and chicenery, United States senators have excelled. One greed has linked itself with another for the satisfaction of both, and the twain have made prediatory terms with other twain, until practically the whole senate became an organized conspiracy against the consuming masses. Some have had the sense of shame to attempt concealment behind sophistries that are an affront to the average intelligence; while others have displayed merely that quality of courage and honesty that is described by the word brazen. Not only has greed conspired with greed, but it has not stopped short of any trick that promised success, and not even the prestidigital art that constitutes the shell game has been beyond the stoop of some of these grave and reverend seignors.

The closing events, we repeat, make a fitting finale and give us reason to rejoice that it is ended.

PROCEEDINGS OF THAW TRIAL.

Defendant Relates Alleged Practices of Man He Killed—Letters Are Introduced at Hearing.

White Plains, N. Y., Aug. 5.—More of those stories which have stained the memory of the eminent architect, Stanford White, stories that paralleled stories of the Madison Square tower room as told by Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, were related at the Thaw sanity hearing before Justice Mills today. They were first told by witnesses called in Thaw's behalf and then by Thaw himself, who took the stand, hoping to show that what he knew about White was not "delusions," as the state contended, and that this phase of the state's attack on his sanity is unfounded.

Between these unsavery accounts, like a jewel held up to view between soiled fingers, came an illustration of mother love and filial affection that brought tears everywhere to the eyes of those eager-faced women who had refused to leave the courtroom when warned of the kind of testimony that was to come. This was the appearance on the stand of Mrs. Mary Copely Thaw, the prisoner's white haired mother.

Adjournment was taken today just after Thaw had left the stand. He may be called again tomorrow. The attorneys will sum up Saturday, and Justice Mills hopes to render a decision sometime next week.

Faculty Increased.

Durant, Okla., Aug. 5.—President M. E. Moore of the Southeastern State Normal, who returned from Guthrie today reports that the board of regents of the state normals has granted an increase in the faculty of the local school, adding two civic teachers to the force of the model training department. This will enable the model school to accommodate at least 300 pupils of grades lower than the eighth grade, thus relieving the congested condition of the city schools. Two librarians have also been added, and a movement launched to secure a Carnegie library for the school. The contract for the erection of the $100,000 school building will be let in about two weeks, and will probably be completed for the summer term next year.

Is Oklahoma Extravagant?

If you have one hundred dollars' worth of taxable property you will pay twenty-five cents this year towards the expenses of state government. This twenty-five cents will be divided about as follows:

Salaries of district and supreme judges, one and a half cents.

State university, preparatory schools, normal schools, school of mines, etc., five and a quarter cents.

Agricultural college, board of agriculture, and experimental farms, three cents.

Care of insane, deaf, dumb, blind and orphans' home, five and four-tenths cents.

Care of criminals and incorrigibles, two and a quarter cents.

Codifying laws and printing laws and court reports, one cent.

Aid of common schools to be distributed according to the school enumeration in each district, two and a half cents.

All other general purposes and cost of state government, four and one-tenth cents.

Now, taxpayer, you see the fallacy of this talk of extravagant state government.

You can see that Oklahoma devotes a greater per cent of her state taxes to agricultural advancement than any other state in the union.

You can see that over two-thirds of all the state taxes is devoted to higher education and to the care of the insane, orphans, and other unfortunates.

You can see the total expense of all other items of state government are less than one-half, of the same expenses of any other state in the union with as large population as we have in Oklahoma.

You can also see that your state tax is only twenty-five cents on the hundred dollars of valuation.

Now, don't forget, Mr. Taxpayer, that all of your additional taxes in excess of twenty-five cents on the hundred dollars is your local, city, county, township, and school district levy, and the amount of such tax is fixed by your county or district board. This brings it close home to you. You should see that your local officers are economic and limit their tax levies only to actual necessities.

HOSPITALITY.

It is for the children's sake, even more than for any one's, that every home ought to make much of the offices of hospitality—ought to make more of them than our American homes are apt to. Guests are essential feature in the full equipment of an ideal home lift. The house in which they are a rarity is worse off than one which has no pictures, few books, or ill-cooked food.

PRECISION.

The habit of being precise in all that you do or say, is one of the most valuable traits of character. It contributes more to a success in life moral as well as financial, than any other quality except honesty. It is an attainment that can only be acquired after long years of careful training and self-education. The habit of noticing little things, permitting nothing to escape your attention, is directly in the line of the acquirement of the faculty of preciseness. First, to take notice of everything, and then to know how to use to best advantage every such thing—this is a large part of precision.

One of the most important duties, connected with the prosecution of any business, is the habit of punctuality, and it can only be attained by the exercise of rare judgment on the part of the heads of departments. On this subject we cannot forebear quoting from Mr. De Vinne's excellent Price List for Printers: "Be punctual with all customers. To do this much discretion is needed. The work that one thinks may be done in two hours often takes three. Some allowance must be made for accidents and detentions. Allow for these and make promises accordingly. To oblige a customer, it is frequently to the interest of the office to tax its resources severely, to do some work at great sacrifices, or even at positive loss. The willingness to oblige a customer is not always accompanied with a corresponding ability. He who good-naturedly promises more than he can perform, is much more likely to offend by his failure, than by his decided, but courteous refusal."

Southey says, "If you would be pungent, be brief; for it is with words as with sunbeams—the more they are condensed the deeper they burn." Long visits, long stories, long exhortations and long prayers seldom profit those who have to do with them. Life is short. Time is short. Moments are precious. Learn to condense, abridge and intensify. We can endure many an ache and ill if it is soon over, while even pleasures grow insipid and pain intolerable if they are protracted beyond the limits of reason and convenience. Learn to be brief. Lop off branches; stick to the main facts in your case. If you pray ask for what you would receive, and get through; if you speak tell your message, and hold your peace; boil down two words into one, and three into two.

A cannon ball feebly propelled may fall short of the mark and be in vain, while a rifle ball urged on by a measureless force may bury itself deep in the heart of the obstacle. A fit and timely word, a warm God-speed to a struggling, desponding, half-despairing soul, a cheery commendation, a helping hand extended to a human brother or sister staggering under a burden of toil and care, or under a heavier burden of sin and shame, a brotherly exhortation, breath of prayer for some sick or needy one, has each behind it the power of God, and may issue in results which Time cannot weigh—which only eternity can measure.—Selected.

KEEP COOL.

"Take things cool," is perhaps as good a motto as can be adopted. It is never good to be excited; no possible benefit can be derived from it, as it always is an excess going beyond due bounds. It simply means too much. The cool man sees things in the true light. Get him away from this, and he is at once out of his sphere. The great workers of the world are those who abide by the facts, and carry them out—not exaggerate or distort them. Nature is always right; she never oversteps her bounds, and hence she is always true and successful. Let a man be beyond this, and he is apt to be flighty or unsuccessful. Trust to coolness, to the truth of things. Not that ardor should be dispensed with—that ardor which sees things but the more clearly; but let it go no farther. Excitement has done immense harm in the world, and is doing it daily—for we are an excitable world. It is our intemperance, mentally; and intemperance of the mind is as bad as that of the body, and often leads to wreck, as does the body. Insanity is one of its common fruits. Abuse is another—in fact is the same. A judicious course is always the thing if we could but keep within temperate bounds.

Don't be in a hurry. It is no sort of use. We never knew a man who was always in a hurry that wasn't always behindhand. They are proverbial all over the world for bringing nothing to pass. Hurry,, skurry, bluster—what does it all amount to? Not a straw. If you want to accomplish anything as it should be done, you must go about it coolly, moderately, faithfully, heartily. Hurrying, fretting, fuming, spluttering, will do no good—not in the lest. Are great works of great men done in a hurry? Not al all. They are the produce of time and patience—the result of slow solid development. Nothing ought to be done in a hurry. It is contrary to nature, reason, right, justice and common sense. Your man of hurry is no sort of character at all. Always in confusion, loose at every point, unhinged and unjointed, blowing and puffing here and there, but all ending in smoke.

It is not work that kills men, it is worry. Work is healthy; you can hardly put more upon a man than he can bear. Worry is rust upon the blade. It is not the revolution that destroys the machinery, but the friction. Fear secretes acids, but love and trust are sweet juices. Anxiety is the poison of life, the parent of many sins, and of more miseries. Why, then, allow it, when we know that all the future is guided by a Father's hand. The chief secret of comfort lies in not suffering trifles to vex us, and in prudently cultivating our undergrowth of small pleasures, since very few great ones are let on long leases. Vainglorious men are never happy. They cannot enjoy the small pleasures of life. They are the scorn of wise men, and admiration of fools, the idols of parasites, and the slaves of their own vaunts.—W. S. T.

THE LIBERAL SOUL.

The liberal soul shall be made fat; and he that watereth shall be watered also himself.

Carry the radiance of your soul in your face; let the world have the benefit of it. Let your cheerfulness be left for good, wherever you are, and let your smiles be scattered like sunbeams—"on the just as well as on the unjust." Such a disposition will yield you a rich reward, for its happy effects will come home to you, and brighten your moments of thought. Smiles are the higher and better responses of nature to the emotion of the soul. Let the children have the benefit of them, these little ones who need the sunshine of the heart to educate them, and would find a level for their buoyant nature in the cheerful, loving faces of those who lead them. Let them not be kept from the middle-aged, who need the encouragement they bring. Give your smiles also to the aged. They come to them like the quiet rain of summer, making fresh and verdant the long, weary path of life. Be gentle and indulgent to all; love the true, the beautiful, the just, the holy.

THE PAN-PRESBYTERIAN ALLIANCE.

The Ninth General Council of the Pan-Presbyterian Alliance recently in session for ten days in New York was a notable gathering. The opening sermon by James D. Moffatt, D. D., president of the Washington and Jefferson college, struck a note of modernity tempered with conservatism that recognized the living present as well as reverenced the dead past. It was a sober plea for an open mind, the broadest vision, and the readjustment of knowledge to the newest truth. Beliefs, the preacher claimed, are important only as they affect character.

Vibrant with the same message was the initial address of President I. Oswald Dykes, D.D., of Cambridge, England. God is ever beckoning His people onward, he said. Religion can not stand still while science is advancing.

A colossal figure in the Council, a sort of balance-wheel keeping the discussion of great theological questions between violent extremes, was James Orr, D.D., of Glasgow, whose trenchant pen and public addresses have won him a foremost place in modern thought.

John Calvin, of course, was not lost sight of, in view of the character of the occasion, and still more in view of the fact that the four-hundredth anniversary of the birth of that father of Presbyterianism is this year being celebrated. He loomed up large, but some of the sharper angularities of his doctrinal system were softened and rounded, less, however, by elimination than by modifying additions.

Th four hundred delegates present wrestled manfully with the live issues of the times. Great enterprises and vital interests were debated. Educational, social, th logical, and religious, affecting many lands and diverse races, particularly the less favored on missionary fields. The recital of successes in the work being done evoked the deepest gratitude and kindled the liveliest hopes. The spirit of union and co-operation animating the Council was full of promise for the future. But the supreme significance of the whole was the evidence of the unimpaired vitality of the church of Jesus Christ and its unabated devotion to the gigantic tasks to which it has put its hand. The ark of God is safe. The world is rolling into the light, turning all its sides toward the Sun of Righteousness. By the time the general council meets again, four years hence in Aberdeen, Scotland, it will be able to register greater progress than evre in the fortunes and forces of the kingdom.

Cement Worker Injured.

Frank Sheppard, a local workman at the Oklahoma Portland Cement Works, received a painful injury to his eyes yesterday morning. While at work in the plant a slight explosion of something blew his eyes full of cement dust, which blinded him temporarily. The cement hardened around the eyes. Local physicians were summoned at once. The patient is in a critical condition.

COTTON CROP IS SHORT THIS YEAR

OUTPUT WILL BE 1,500,000 BALES LESS THAN LAST ACCORDING TO REPORT.

President of Cotton Association Dislikes Government Report.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 5, 1909.—"The cotton crop in the south this year will be 1,500,000 bales short of last year."

Harvie Jordan, of Atlanta, Ga., president of the Southern Cotton association who is at present in Washington is responsible for the above statement.

"The cotton crop in the south is in a very critical condition," said Mr. Jordan, "and the best estimates that have been made concerning the crop of Texas place the output at 2,500,000 bales, as compared with 4,000,000 bales last year.

"Conditions in the cotton area are unusual. West of the Mississippi river there has been a lack of moisture while east of the river there has been a deluge of rain. The prospects for a good crop in Louisiana are exceedingly poor while the conditions in Mississippi are worse, if anything. Things look a little better in Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina but even there they are below normal. I look for extremely high prices for cotton this fall."

Mr. Jordan has but little faith in the government reports on the cotton crop and thinks that something is radically wrong when the department of agriculture has been obliged to change its estimate as to the acreage every year for the past fifteen years.

More than 144,000 acres of land originally withdrawn by Secretary of Interior Garfield in connection with various irrigation schemes under the Roosevelt policy of conservation, have been restored to entry by Acting Secretary of Interior Frank Pierce.

Of this area 118,000 acres were originally withdrawn in connection with the Umatilla project, Oregon; 19,200 acres in connection with the Sun river project, Colorado and 4800 acres in connection with the Williston project North Dakota.

The lands restored become subject to entry November 15.

HON. MOMEN PRIUTT.

Prominent Criminal Lawyer Up Against the Nice Job of Defending Negroes Responsible for Frank Hatcher Tragedy.

Hon. Momen Pruett, of Oklahoma City, who has been retained for the defense in the case of Lifla (Moon Light) Black came in this morning. He is engaged this afternoon in looking up the defense and general merits of Moon Light's case.

It will be remembered that Moon Light was one of the principals in the Frank Hatcher tragedy.

It is understood that the negro Warren murderer of Hatcher has indicated to his attorney, Hon. Moman Pruiitt, who once defended him for murder over at the Valley that he would give up provided the protection of the law should be guaranteed him. It is reported that Gov. Haskell has been called upon in such interest. Since Mr. Pruitt left town for the country soon after his arrival the details of the prospect of the negro Warren's apprehension can not be given at this time.

Come on Mr. Warren.

This is not the community where the mob spirit is prevalent. It appears to be the general view of the citizens that the negro Warren, supposed to have killed Hatcher shall have all the benefits of the law. Undoubtedly the authorities of Pontotoc county supported by a people against further mob violence are able to afford Warren the necessary protection.

TAFT JOKES AS HE SIGNS TARIFF BILL

"GOOD-BYE OLD PINEAPPLE," HE CALLS TO SENATOR FROM FLORIDA.

Measure Will Be Known as Payne Tariff Bill—Leather Schedule Changes.

History of Tariff Law.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Chronology of the Payne tariff law:

March 4, 1909—President Taft called an extraordinary session of congress to revise the tariff.

March 15—Congress convened.

March 18—Chairman Payne of the house ways and means committee introduced a provisional bill.

April 10—House passed bill and transmitted it to the senate.

April 12—Senate began consideration of the measure.

July 8—Senate passed bill with 847 amendments.

July 9—Tariff question shifted from both houses of congress and sent to conference committee.

July 29—Conferees reached agreement and bill signed and reported to the house.

July 31—House adopted conference report and passed the bill.

Aug. 5—President signed tariff bill.

Aug. 6, 1909—New tariff law becomes effective.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The tariff has been revised and the extraordinary session of congress has been brought to a close. Both houses adjourned sine die officially at 6 o'clock tonight. That is the time entered upon the books, but as a matter of fact the adjournment was taken in the house at 5:38 p. m. and in the senate at 5:58 p. m.

The closing hours of the session were attended by scenes of a most uninteresting character. The last two days had been consumed by members of the senate in expressing their satisfaction or dissatisfaction, as the case might be.

The conference report on the bill was agreed to by the senate, 47 to 31, when the vote was taken at 2 p. m., and soon afterward the concurrent resolution making certain changes in the leather schedule was adopted by both houses.

President Taft arrived at the Capitol at 4:45 p. m. and entered the room set aside for the occupation of the president on the concluding day of a session of congress. His appearance there, the first since his incumbency as president, caused members to desert the two chambers and form in line to be received by him. There was a constant procession of hand-shaking statesmen through the president's room from the time of his arrival until his departure at 5:50 o'clock.

Just as the hands of the clock in the president's room reached six minutes past 5, the Payne tariff bill as the measure will be known, was laid before the president. He picked up a pen supplied by Chairman Payne of the House Ways and Means committee and which had been used by both the vice president and speaker in signing the bill, and attached his signature. After writing "Wm. H. Taft," the president added: "Signed five minutes after 5 o'clock, Aug. 5, 1909.—W. H. T."

Bending over the president as he affixed his signature were Secretary Knox, Secretary MacVeagh, Attorney General Wickersham, Postmaster General Hitchcock, Secretary Nagel and Secretary Wilson.

PHILOSOPHY OF A CYNIC.

Nothing pleases some people like themselves.

Unfortunately spot cash isn't always spotless cash.

It's easy for the average woman to keep secrets—going.

Too often when the heart is willing the purse is weak.

Even the intoxication of love may have dire after effects.

Some men's idea of a corking good time is an uncorking one.

She is a wise young wife who tries her first cake on a tramp.

The best man at many a wedding proves to be the bride.

Cold cash is what every man is anxious to freeze onto.

Those who marry in haste have plenty of leisure to pay alimony.

As men grow older they are apt to talk less and say more.

A man doesn't have to be a contortionist to pat himself on the back.

A man naturally rises in his own estimation when he settles down.

Perhaps love is blind, but it manages to find its way to the minister's.

It seems much easier to go from bad to worse than from good to better.

AT THE SLEDGE HOME.

Forty-Two Party in Honor of Mrs. Lindsey.

One of the swellest of mid-summer affairs was a 42 party given at the beautiful home of Mrs. W. W. Sledge, in honor of Mrs. Lindsey. The guests were met at the door by the hostess and her charming daughter Miss Alpha Sledge and assisted by Miss Allen, after half an hour or more of delightful conversation the guests found their partners and began playing the ever fascinating game of 42.

Refreshing grape juice was served during the game and at the close delicious sherbert and cake was served.

Those present were Mrs. W. S. Thompson, Hale, McKinley, Reeves, Simpson, Barney, Croxton, Broadfoot, J. E. Jones, Bolin, Chauncey, Ebey, Kise, Hardin, Guin, Mays, Saffarans, Ingram, Levin, Tobin, Miss Allen. Out of town guests, Mrs. Lindsey of Commerce and Mrs. Swoop of Alabama.

DEBBS PRAISES CONSTITUTION.

Leading Socialist Comments on Oklahoma Conditions.

Oklahoma City, Ok., Aug. 5.—Eugene V. Debbs, socialist leader, was a visitor here today en route to New York. That the Oklahoma constitution embodies in it the most democratic principles of any legislative document and that the state will be sufficiently exploited by capital without begging capital to do the exploiting is the summary of the state's legislative and industrial condition as seen by Mr. Debbs. He said that much of his interest was centered in socialism in this state at present, and that he would make three more trips to this state before fall. He goes from here to Pittsburg to take part in the pressed steel car strike, and from there to Woodward and Aline, Ok., to deliver addresses.

Mr. and Mrs. Shearon returned to their home in Sherman after a few days visit with Mr. and Mrs. George Cox.

BIRTH OF THE GERMAN NAVY.

A Few Facts Showing the Wonderful Progress Made in Building Up a Marine Power.

Some idea of the wonderful progress of the German navy is gained when one realizes that Vice-Admiral Reinhold von Werner, whose death is announced at the age of 84, saw practically the birth of that navy as we now know it. When the German fleet was sold by auction in 1852 Werner secured a commission in the new Prussian navy, and during the war with Denmark he commanded one of the three steam frigates, then the principal ships of the Prussian navy. At the date of the formation of the federal navy Werner was director of dockyards at Danzig. In 1869, however, the deceased vice-admiral returned to active service, and at the time of his retirement in 1878 he held the command of the Baltic station. He devoted the last 30 years of his life to the patriotic task of popularizing the idea of that sea power which he had seen grow from insignificant proportions to a strength which has done so much to stimulate the shipbuilding of other nations. He was a prolific writer, and his authorship extended over a long period. Even at the time of the Battle of Jasmund he attracted attention by a work on the Prussian navy, its present and its future.

BELIEVES TARIFF IS REVISED DOWNWARD

PRESIDENT TAFT ISSUES STATEMENT REGARDING REPUBLICAN PROMISES.

Shows That He Was Willing to Sign Any Bill Which Would Please the Trusts.

Washington, Aug. 5.—President Taft, tonight gave out a statement embodying his views of the new tariff act, which he designates officially as the "Payne bill," in accordance with past custom of giving first recognition to the framer of the measure in the house of representatives.

The president declares that while the bill is not perfect by any means, nor a complete compliance with promises made, strictly interpreted, it is neverthless a sincere effort on the part of the party to make a downward revision and to comply with the promises of the platform. The statement in full follows:

"I have signed the Payne tariff bill because I believe it to be the result of sincere effort on the part of the republican party to make a downward revision, and to comply with the promises of the platform. The statement in full follows:

"I have signed the Payne tariff bill because I believe it to be the result of sincere effort on the part of the republican party to make a downward revision, and to comply with the promises of the platform as they have been generally understood, and as I interpreted them in the campaign before election.

"This is not a perfect tariff bill, or a complete compliance with the promises made, strictly interpreted, but a fulfillment free from criticism relative to a subject matter involving schedules and thousands of articles could not be expected.

"There have been enough real decreases in rates to justify the statement that this bill is a substantial downward revision and a reduction of excessive rates.

"This is not a free trade bill. It was not intended to be. The republican party did not promise to make a free trade bill.

"It promised to make the rates protective, but to reduce them when they exceeded the difference between the cost of production abroad and at home, making allowance for a reasonable profit on actual investments here. I believe that while this excess has not been reduced in a number of cases, in a great majority the rates are such as are necessary to protect American industries, but are low enough, in case of abnormal increase of demand, and raising of prices to permit the possibility of the importation of the foreign article and thus to prevent excessive prices.

"The Philippine tariff section I have struggled to secure for ten years past and it gratifies me exceedingly by my signature to give it the effect of law. I am sure it will greatly increase the trade between the two countries, and it will do much to build up the Philippines in a healthful prosperity.

"The administrative clauses of the bill and the customs court are admirably adapted to secure a more uniform and a more speedy final construction of the meaning of the law.

"The corporation tax is a just and equitable excise measure, which, it is hoped will produce a sufficient amount to prevent a deficit and which incidentally, will secure valuable statistics and information concerning the many corporations of the country and will constitute an important step toward that degree of publicity and regulation which the tendency in corporate enterprises in the last twenty years has shown to be necessary.

PEACE IN LABOR FEDERATION.

Fight Arising During Last National Campaign Is Ended.

Tulsa, Ok., Aug. 9.—The fight in the state federation of labor which arose during the presidential campaign last year and which threatened disruption of the organization came to a peaceful end today. J. Luther Langston, secretary of the federation, whose action in refusing to place the official seal of the organization to political indorsements was the cause of the fight, came into control of the organization. Of the new officers, C. C. Zigler of Oklahoma City is president and Langston was re-elected secretary.

The convention unanimously protested against amending certain sections of the state constitution as recommended by the State Federation of Commercial organizers recently.

HOUSED IN LUXURY

SPLENDID QUARTERS FOR UNITED STATES SENATORS.

New Marble Annex, Costing Close to $3,000,000, Is Rapidly Nearing Completion—Appointments Are Magnificent.

The finishing touches are being put on the exterior of the new office building of the United States senate on Capitol hill at Washington, and visitors soon will find, added to the show places at the national capital, the most magnificent office building in the world. This monster new marble "annex" to the capitol, which will represent when completed a cost close to $3,000,000, not only will provide suites of offices for each of the 90 senators now in office, but has ample surplus space to provide similar working quarters for wearers of the toga who will represent geographical divisions that now are territories, but which in time will be admitted to statehood.

The new senate office building is the most luxurious, but is not the largest office building in the world. The palm for size belongs to the new office building for members of the house of representatives, which was completed something more than a year ago, and which is south of the capitol in the same relative position that the new senate structure occupies north of the capitol, thus balancing, in an architectural sense, this grouping of note-worthy buildings. The new senate building being between the capitol and the new Union station is almost the first object seen by the visitor to Washington emerging from the new $20,000,000 railroad terminal.

Not only in general design but in architectural detail and in the structural mediums employed, the new senate office building is identical with the working quarters provided for the representatives. A person looking at the two wide-spreading marble buildings from the steps of the capitol would pronounce them twin structures in every respect. As a matter of fact, however, the house building is fully one-fourth larger, being built around four sides of a square, whereas the senate building is built on three sides of a square, the fourth side being open.

Obviously more space is required to provide private offices for the representatives, upward of 400 in number, than for the senators, who muster less than 100 all told. However, the difference in aggregate area is not nearly so great as it would be did the two classes of lawmakers fare alike in the matter of accommodations. Each representative has assigned for his individual use a single spacious room, with desks for himself and his secretary or clerk. Each senator, on the other hand, has a suite of two rooms and lavatory. There is a large office for each senator, whereas the second room in each suite, designed for the use of the senator's secretary, is slightly smaller, and located between these connecting rooms are coat rooms and lavatory.

The appointments of the new senate office building represent the highest refinments of luxurious simplicity. All the rooms are finished in mahogany, toned with acids to give the richer effects which otherwise could be gained only by the mellowing influence of time. The doors and woodwork in general are of Honduras mahogany, stained to a rich red-brown, while the furniture is of African mahogany, naturally a darker wood, stained to a soft, warm red. All of the furniture has been designed specially, being heavy, simple and dignified with little carving. In each of the senatorial offices there is a marble mantel above which is a large mirror in a heavy gold frame. On the mantel is a pair of electric candlesticks, which, like the central electrolier and the six brackets or wall lights are of special designs in old silver. Each office has its telephone, electric fan and other conveniences, and in addition to an up-to-date restaurant there are in the building baths, barber shop and all the other essentials of the modern masculine community, sufficient unto itself.

Immune from Arrest.

In Washington, in the capital of the nation, there reside 200 men who, with their households, have absolute immunity from the laws of the land, even though they commit crimes of the first degree. They may shoot down the man who injures them; they may, if they see fit, paint the new equestrian statue of Gen. Phil Sheridan a vivid pea green, yet the hands of Uncle Sam must be kept from their shoulders, and woe unto the unterrified police man or other servant of the law who undertakes to bring them to justice once they have declared their official connections. These men who are so clothed in immunity, are the members of the diplomatic corps, and their shield is international law. It is provided in the laws of nations that they must answer before the tribunals of their own countries for the offenses they commit here in Washington, but that they shall not be tried by any court of the United States.
